LADY GOLDEN.

BY MRS. C. H. GOLDENSLYME.
LADY GOLDEN sweeps the pavement
With her rustling moire antique—
Silken blossoms and dainty leaves
Kiss the beauty on her cheek.

Jade cashmere wrap my body—
Cashmores lured across the sea;
Gold they cost, enough to gladden
Darling Melanie and me.

Lady Golden trails her velvets—
Pale marine, with diamonds bright;
But my darling wears a vesture
Bathed by a purer light.

And her cabinet gathers glory
From the richness of her soul;
Angels drap her spirit daily
With the purest glowing stole.

Lady Golden drops her eyelids
Like a star of midnight falut,
And in passing folds her velvets
Closer, lest they touch my saint.

On the softest velvet cushions
Kneels my Lady Golden down,
And beneath the solemn midnight
Prays to wear the Christian crown.

But before her gazing spirit,
All the serpents in the skies
Seem to wear my darling's tresses—
Look from Molucca's sweet eyes.

Gladly would my Lady Golden
Give her gems, and silks, and lace—
Take of poverty its burden—
Just to wear my darling's face.

Gleanings.

THE ARAB'S WONDER.—An English traveller describes the speechless amazement with which a wild Arab chief of the desert watched, in a tent near Cairo, the development of a photograph of the great Sphinx. When the features of the mysterious sculpture were revealed on the glass, the Arab turned to his companion, and pointing to the photographer, exclaimed, "He is the eldest son of Satan."

I told you so.—An old lady who was in the habit of declaring, after the occurrence of any unusual event, that she had predicted it, was one day cleverly "sold" by her worthy spouse, who, like many others we wot of, had got tired of hearing her eternal "I told you so." Rushing into the house, breathless with excitement, he dropped into his chair, elevated his hands, and exclaimed: "O! wife! wife! wife! what—what do you think? The old cow has gone and eat up our grindstone!" The old lady was ready, and hardly waiting to hear the last word, she screamed out at the top of her lungs: "I told you so! I told you so! You always would let it stand out of doors!"

SELLING AN ARTIST.—Mr. W. is one of our most popular artists and draughtsmen. Not long since, while busily at work, he was interrupted by a rough looking customer, with—"Be you Mr. W., the painter?" "I am, sir." "You teach creatures to draw, I believe?" "Yes, sir," replied the artist, who fancied the visitor some wealthy old father. "Do you wish your daughter to take lessons?" "No, sir; not my daughter." "Your son, perhaps?" "No, not my son, neither." "Who, then, sir? Not yourself I hope?" "No, not myself; but somebody a darned sight more difficult—a four-year-old mule. I bought the other day. Learn him to draw, and darn me if I don't ont peewter and give you the biggest hundred dollars you ever seed." The countryman went down stairs with a hop, skip and jump, closely followed by an old pair of boots, a meerschaum pipe and sundry other moveables.

Varieties.

A LECTURE asserts that all bitter things were hot. "No," suggested Brown, "not a bitter cold day."

Why should lawyers be classed as members of the feminine gender? Because they are females.

You know mock modesty as you do mock turtle, from its being the produce of a calf's head.

The intellect of the wise is like glass; it admits the light of heaven and reflects it.

In these hard times "many a good tall fellow" is always "short."

Snickles says that after man was driven from Paradise, it wasn't worth Adam.

Some Irishman proposes to have a wake over the "dead of night."

The edge tool of Philosophy—An axiom.

A Scotch parson praying after a flowery brother had preached, said:—"Oh Lord, bless thy young servant, and in thy wisdom prick him with thy Spirit, and take the wind out of him."

There are two kinds of ambition, that which has a specific object—the ambition of practical men—and that which is general—the ambition of dreamers.

It is much more easy to inspire a passion than a faith. Were beauty but as solicitous of the one as of the other object, she need never fear that her myrtles will change to willows.

If a rich old gentleman has a thought of marrying, let him consider well beforehand what it is that he stands in need of—a wife, an business, or a nurse.

A witty fellow slipped down on an icy pavement. While sitting, he mumbled, "I have no desire to see the town burned down, but I sincerely wish the streets were laid in ashes."
